EXPOSITION PLANS WILL BE LAUNCHED THIS WEEK

Chamber of Commerce to Dine Mayor, Council and County Board Thursday Night

Positive steps toward the launching of the great southeastern exposition at Lakewood will be taken this week, when the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce entertains the mayor and council members at dinner on the roof of the capital city club next Thursday evening, July 2, at 7:30 o'clock.

President Neil R. Wilkinson of the chamber will preside and after dinner there will be an open discussion which is expected to result in the organized operation of the chamber, the city government and the county government. Plans will be pushed forward rapidly and the exposition project, thus laid, in all probability the ground will be broken for the coming fall or the fall of 1915.

It is that time it is hoped to have railroads and one or more double track car lines to the grounds, providing facilities for passengers and ample parking for automobiles.

The main features of the fair will be the modern, animal industry and manufacturing, and with these the promoters expect to secure a great permanent art exhibit which will be the pride of Atlanta.

The development of Lakewood on a large scale as a year-round public resort, to be a part of Atlanta's general park system, is also a big feature of the exposition project.

Those who have studied Lakewood say it will be a beautiful park around Atlanta. The ground is picturesque and splendidly wooded. The lake is fine for bathing and boating.

Mayor Dan Carey is enthusiastic over the possibility of park development in connection with the fair. Unless the park could be made partially self-sustaining the year around, his idea is to establish a great zoological and botanical gardens on the south, overlooking the lake.

Senator Walter G. Cooper of the number of commerce advances the suggestion that the main auditorium of the exposition be built in circular shape to accommodate the famous painting of a battle of Atlanta known as the Cyclone. Now housed in a ramshackle wooden structure in Grant park, where it has been threatened with destruction for many years, the painting is a masterpiece of the public art by no means adequate to the important interest on the part of Atlanta and visitors.

CENTRAL CHURCH TO HEAR REV. DR. JACOBS

Rev. Thorneill Jacobs, D. D., who will apply the pulpit of Central Congregational church during the months of July and August, will preach at the morning service on Sunday, July 27, at 10 o'clock. There will be no sermon in the evening service. It is said she strongly objected to her daughter marrying.

For that reason Mrs. Edmondson was kept in ignorance of the situation.

Pretty Frank Case Witness Elopes and Gets Married

MRS. S. J. MAUER

Miss Monteen Stover, One of State's Principal Witnesses, Elopes With S. J. Mauer, a Savannah Printer

Miss Monteen Stover, nineteen years old, a witness in the Frank trial around whose testimony the state's case largely pivoted, eloped with Samuel J. Mauer, a Savannah printer, Saturday afternoon, and was married by Judge R. D. Thomas, of the municipal court, at 4:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Stover's mother, Mrs. M. W. Edmondson, 171 South Forsyth street, when informed of the marriage after the young couple had left for Savannah on a 5:30 o'clock train, became hysterical. It is said she strongly objected to her daughter marrying.

For that reason Mrs. Edmondson was kept in ignorance of the situation.

Young Mauer, who lives at 211 Gordon street, west, Savannah, arrived in Atlanta Saturday morning, after arranging by correspondence with Miss Stover for the marriage to take place Saturday afternoon. The groom and Miss Stover some months ago while on a visit to Atlanta and mutual love at first sight was the result.

Accompanied by friends, young Mauer secured the marriage license Saturday afternoon, telephoned the pretty bride-to-be, met her downtown and they went to Judge E. D. Thomas' court and were married.

After the ceremony they delegated Deputy Clerk H. B. Cobb to inform Mrs. Edmondson, pleading him to accompany until the 5:30 train for Macon and Savannah had pulled out of the terminal station. When Mr. Cobb telephoned to inform the mother he was told by Mr. Edmondson that she had already heard the news and was almost in hysterics.

As Mr. and Mrs. Mauer left the court

WORK BEGINS MONDAY ON NEW OGLESBY BUILDING

Structure Will Be Transformed Into Modern Retail Building in 60 Days

Work will begin tomorrow morning on the new Oglesby building on Broad street bridge, and within sixty days this structure will be transformed into one of the most complete and modern retail buildings on the street.

The work is being done by J. O. Oglesby, Jr., who has already secured tenants for a large portion of the available space, and negotiations are in progress for the remainder.

The building will be, in effect, four stories high. The lower, railroad story, will have a concrete floor, and will furnish railroad space for unloading three cars at one time. On the Broad street floor there will be six commercial stories, two of which will face on Broad street while the four others will open on The Journal Viaduct Way which will connect Broad street and Forsyth streets.

This viaduct way will be built shortly. The second and third floors above Broad street consisting large hall spaces, and which may be subdivided to suit tenants, have already been leased for fifteen years.

The remodeling of this building, with plate glass fronts, copper grillwork, modern entrance, hallways and elevator service, will be brought thoroughly up to date, marks a new era in the history of Broad as a retail street. It is one of Atlanta's widest and best business streets, and has already begun to attract the retail trade of the city which is expanding beyond the limits of a single street. There is no question that Broad is a coming retail street and that its development in that direction will be rapid.

NEGRO REAL ESTATE AGENT HELD UNDER BOND

T. L. Bowen, a negro real estate agent, living at 255 West Fair street, was bound over by Recorder Pro Tem Preston Saturday afternoon on charges of vagrancy and larceny after arrest.

The latter charge was pressed against Bowen by H. L. Edmondson, who claims that in 1911 he entrusted $100 to Bowen for the purchase of some property and that Bowen had appropriated the money for his own use and refused to make any repayment therefor, although repeatedly requested to do so. Bond of $300 was assessed.

MRS. MARY LOU WOOD BURDEN FRANTLEY'S BRIDE

Mrs. Mary Lou Wood was married Saturday afternoon by Judge E. D. Thomas, of the municipal court, to Burden Frantley, a bookkeeper for Riddell brothers.

The bride told those present that "if they ever come up again in the Frank case, write or telegraph Savannah and I'll come on up."

Mrs. Stover, it will be remembered, testified that Leo M. Frank's office was unoccupied at 12:05 o'clock on the day Mary Phagan was murdered, thus forming an important link in the evidence on which Frank was convicted.

Cows to Be Milked As Phonograph Plays Hesitation Waltzes

(By Associated Press.) RICHMOND, Va., June 27.—Thomas J. Strauch, chief of the dairy division of the Richmond board of health, is giving official countenance to an experiment designed to tease more and creamier milk from cows by draining them while soft-toned phonographs ripple forth hesitation waltzes. Local dairymen are said to have borrowed the idea from George Benson, of Fort Jarrist, N. Y. They say the cows seem to milk more thoroughly when the one-step is played.

Custis Nottingham Enters Suit for Damage Against Ellis Garage

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) MACON, Ga., June 27.—Postmaster Custis Nottingham has brought suit against Ellis garage for damage done to his automobile in a unique way. He asks for damages in the sum of $1,000.

Mr. Nottingham says that he was climbing the steep hill on Spring street, when suddenly he observed an automobile running down the hill in his direction. The approaching car, he says, straggled from one side of the street to the other, coming at a fast rate and it was impossible for him to dodge it. He says the impact threw his car into a front yard. There was no person in the other car, which belonged to the Ellis garage. It had been left in the street, near the curbing and started down hill of its own volition.

JOURNAL READERS ASKED TO HELP FIND BOY

Mrs. Annie Donohoe wishes to ask the readers of The Journal to assist her in finding her twelve-year-old son, David Donohoe, who disappeared last Sunday from El Hannon institute, near Marion, N. C. The mother says she knows of no reason why the boy should run away from the school and will greatly appreciate information as to his whereabouts. The boy is of average size and is a medium blond.

FOUNDER OF TABERNACLE ASKED TO RETURN HERE

Baptist Congregation Urges Dr. Broughton to Leave London Church

Following a call issued Wednesday night by the congregation of the Baptist Tabernacle, asking Dr. Len G. Broughton, former pastor and founder of the Tabernacle, to return from Christ church London, to Atlanta, a letter formally urging Dr. Broughton to come back to his old pastorate has been written by a special committee appointed for this purpose.

E. C. Callaway, chairman, was ill, so W. T. Jones as acting chairman called a meeting of the committee in the Tabernacle and the letter was written.

No answer is expected from Dr. Broughton for at least ten days. Many of the members of the Tabernacle will return to his Atlanta church.

Rev. L. G. Dibble, assistant pastor, is acting as pastor at the Tabernacle now.

Dix Diamond Grading Absolute Safety to Buyers

The first consideration of every prudent buyer is the feeling of absolute safety and confidence that he is getting best goods at prices really the lowest.

Discriminating buyers know that it is not all the price, but that grade, weight, color and perfection are all to be considered. It requires years of experience and much technical skill to grade diamonds to a proper classification.

The grade, weight and price of our diamonds are marked in plain figures. Absolutely nothing is hidden. If a stone is not perfect, the shape of cutting not correct, or if it is "off color" (which is hard to distinguish without a careful comparison with a better grade), it is so marked.

We send selection packages of diamonds anywhere to responsible people and pay express charges both ways. You assume no obligation to buy, as we appreciate the opportunity to show our diamonds and prefer that our customers have opportunity for leisurely inspection and comparison.

Our deferred payment plan enables those who may not want to pay all cash for a diamond to pay 30 per cent down and divide the balance into as many as ten monthly notes, with a small interest account.

We would like to have a copy of our Diamond Book No. 5 in the hands of anyone, no matter how slightly interested. A postal card will bring it.

MISSISSIPPIAN EXPELLED FROM NAVY RESERVATION

M. P. Harris Charged With Impersonating Another Man

(By Associated Press.)
ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 27.—M. P. Harris, of Mississippi, a young enlisted man in the navy, tonight was escorted to the boundaries of the government reservation at Annapolis and there dishonorably discharged from the service because he had impersonated another man in an examination for admission to the Naval academy as a midshipman.

Harris won a designation from United States Senator Williams to take the entrance tests under a new plan of Secretary of the Navy Daniels for the benefit of enlisted men. He passed the tests and later took the place of T. R. Moore, also of Mississippi, and passed the first examination for him in Virginia.

When Moore appeared at the Naval academy to take physical tests, the deception was discovered because his handwriting did not agree with that in the first examination papers.

Although kept in ignorance of the investigation, Harris told that he was suffering from a slight physical defect, and gave to the academy when publicity was given to the affair, and did not return.

The Naval academy authorities recommended a court-martial for Harris, but the ruling of the secretary of the navy was for dishonorable discharge. Harris had been a prisoner aboard the prison ship Reina Mercedes since the discovery of his guilt.

HEAT INCREASES AS TREES DECREASE, SAYS PARK MANAGER CAREY

In the rural district is always the forest.

"Trees also impart coolness to the air on account of the large amount of cool water in the form of vapor which is transpired through their leaves. Bailey in his Cyclopedia of Nature says on this subject: 'A single oak of good size will transpire 120 to 130 tons of water into the air during the course of a season.' 'By reason,' Bailey means from the time the buds swell in the spring until the leaves are killed by frost in the fall.

"In one of its recent Year Books the department of agriculture has the statement that 'One acre of dry soil will evaporate about 127 tons of water during the season of growth.' This seems like an enormous amount of water. It is well to remember, however, that one inch of rainfall per acre is equal to about 100 tons of water. The average rainfall around Atlanta is fifty inches per year. It thus becomes clear that while the amount of water evaporated by trees and hay is large, it is in reality a small part of what actually reaches the earth. However, it is also well to remember that when 120 or 130 tons transpired by a single oak during its season is multiplied by the number of trees in Atlanta the aggregate is considerable. For instance, to admit for the sake of argument that the 520 trees cut down by the park department transpired only 100 tons of water each, and that event Atlanta has lost as a result of the removing of these trees 52,000 tons of water that would have been given off in such shape as to cool the atmosphere.

NEW IDEA IN FURNITURE DELIVERY

TO double up on their deliveries in order to keep pace with their orders, the American Furniture company has put an automobile truck of its own into service. Officers of the company say their up-to-the-minute idea of "rush your house while you wait" is pleasing their customers immensely. The truck is a 30-horsepower, ton and a half capacity machine.

"There is still another reason that the removal of the trees has increased the heat. Every one knows that an overcrowded room is hot. It is unnecessary to mention the reason. Pure air is cooler than vitiated air. Trees and other vegetables absorb the poisonous carbonic acid gas which man exhales from his lungs and through other outlets throw off oxygen which is necessary to the existence of man.

"It is needless to say that the park department is failing to plant trees in Atlanta solely because it has not the funds for that purpose. We of the park department realize the necessity for trees, but we cannot proceed without money. We have laws in Georgia for the protection of birds that destroy insects, because every man in the state has a right to the benefit of these birds and the man who kills an insect is a menace to the community.

"We have laws in Georgia for the protection of game and we have closed seasons on much of the game of Georgia. Why? The great principle of the greatest good to the greatest number is observable in these laws.

"Now if the removal of all the trees of Georgia would make of this state an arid waste, uninhabitable by man, and the destruction of the trees would have this effect and is producing this effect, then the time has come for the state to declare that the man who unnecessarily removes a tree in Georgia is a public menace and the well known principle of the greatest good to the greatest number should prevail for the tree as well as for the game. So far as I know there are no laws in Georgia for the protection of trees.

"The legislature is in session. We have given the legislators a touch of heat in this matter. I hope it will make them think."

How Uncle Sam Saves Thousands of Lives

Depends Upon the Hot Springs of Arkansas to Cure His Soldiers, Sailors and Citizens.

Many years ago, when Thomas Jefferson was president, the U. S. Government discovered the fact that the Hot Springs of Arkansas were the most valuable asset in America for the cure of many diseases. The hot springs were not only and became a part of the government's duty to the people of the Government.

It is to be understood that the thousands upon thousands of lives that have been saved through the healing power of these waters are no longer shared with the military and naval service, but are shared with the civilian population. The waters are no longer shared with the military and naval service, but are shared with the civilian population. The waters are no longer shared with the military and naval service, but are shared with the civilian population.

The ailments that most readily yield to the baths are Rheumatism, Gout, Neuritis, Locomotor Ataxia (paralytic stage), Bright's disease (when not far advanced), Skin and blood diseases, Rheumatoid, Stomach and intestinal troubles, Catarrhs of the bladder, and all other ailments that are cured by the waters.

Resolving into action America's greatest gift to the sick, the Government has never allowed them to be exploited for private gain. The prices charged for the baths are strictly moderate—hot charges are extremely low, and every consideration is afforded the visitor.

For the Hot Springs of Arkansas, the most delightful resort to be found anywhere in the South and the United States, the Government has made the following arrangements:

The best of hotel accommodations, ideal climate, and the most complete medical service.

Mr. Geo. B. Drilling, Hot Springs, Ark., is the agent for the Hot Springs of Arkansas. Please send him your name and address, and he will send you a booklet and a coupon for a free trial bath.

Overland $950

$1075 With electric starter and generator
Prices, F. O. B. Toledo, Ohio.

Concerning the Intrinsic Price of the Overland and the Inflated Price of Some Other Cars

PROBABLY the most confusing problem every automobile buyer faces is the inflated price of the Overland. The fact that the dealer can get a great inducement to the buyer. The trick being, that because the dealer cuts the swollen price the buyer is supposed to be duped into believing he is getting a bargain—whereas exactly the opposite is true.

For instead of getting more for the money the buyer still gets less for more money.

The car—the price of which fluctuates at the will or whim of the dealer on the pretense or subterfuge of effecting a saving—is a good car NOT to buy.

Beware of the dealer who has a fluctuating scale of prices. He is a good man to stay away from. By necessity any car that he handles must have a fluctuating value and must have back of it a fluctuating service.

Can you go into John Wanamaker's in New York and attempt to strike a bargain?

Can you go into Marshall Field's in Chicago and start to haggle over the price of anything?

If you want a Big Ben clock, a Victrola, a Howard Watch, a Steinway Piano, a Gillette Safety Razor, or any one of a hundred other staple articles—haven't you got to pay the advertised price which is fixed at its source of manufacture?

So it is with the Overland car. The price is fixed at the factory. The price is made as low as it can be made. Value considered—none are lower.

The fact that the Overland price is maintained in spite of pretty good evidence of the stability of our dealers and the faith the public have in the Overland car itself.

Even the cut prices of other manufacturers are usually above our staple prices.

We have but one logical inducement to offer—the car itself at the advertised price—no more—no less.

The fact that we are shipping over 5000 cars a month—the fact that we are doing more business than any of those offering inflated car values—the fact that we do more business in one month than some manufacturers do in twelve months—proves that our policy must be fundamentally correct, and that the policy of some of the other manufacturers must be fundamentally incorrect.

Careful comparison with other cars will show that a car of the Overland quality and mechanical efficiency offers much greater intrinsic value for less money than any other similar car in the world.

We say again—beware of the dealer who approaches you with a cut from his price. He is endeavoring to deceive you into thinking you are saving money.

We want you to become acquainted with the Overland. Come in and see us. Thorough demonstration—any time—any place.

FORSYTH

"CAPTAIN ALVAREZ,"
PICTURE AT THE GRANDMULLER and STANLEY
FORSYTH

Forsyth Offers Hot Weather
Vaudeville and Fans - Pictures at the Grand-Nine Bill
at Bijou

An ideal summertime vaudeville program will be offered this week at the Forsyth. The management has chosen seven distinctive types of the best quality in vaudeville to make up the bill and with headliners and features that are for the most part the cream of the present available talent. It appears that the show will be far superior to some of the recent offerings and right up to the highest standard of regular mid-season.

Miss Emma Carus, the famous musical comedy star, was booked on Saturday to headline the bill. This star is one of the greatest in all vaudeville. She is one of the highest salaried women in vaudeville, and in regular season is always at the head of some of the big musical shows that stay at home on Broadway. She has just closed her season with "A Broadway Melodrama" and has been induced to take a few selected weeks in high class vaudeville before her vacation abroad at the opening of next season. She has joined hands with Carl Randall, one of the cleverest singing and dancing comedians in vaudeville, and will have an act that will be one of the big events of the summer season.

Miss Carus is distinctively unique and she is original. Her last appearance in Atlanta was two seasons ago when she appeared with one of the great musical comedy successes and it is a matter of record that she won the honors of the evening. With Mr. Randall the attractive woman will sing and dance, and offer new ideas in laugh winning.

The return of Maud Muller and Ed Stanley means a real treat. Maud Muller is the best of all the eccentric females on the stage. She is a genuine comedienne and a vocalist of splendid ability. Ed Stanley is a character comedian in a class by himself. The team has been headlining exclusive bills all season and were secured as special features of the Bijou. Miss Letzel, a beautiful girl, possessing a superb figure, will present her famous aerial specialty assisted by Jeanette. This act is conceded to be the very best of its kind in the theatrical profession. It is wonderfully sensational and wonderfully interesting. Suzanne Rocamora will meet old friends. The pretty singing comedienne who was once a member of the Bijou Musical Comedy Company will make new friends with a series of exclusive songs, the kind that she has been singing at the exclusive cabarets in and around New York. Miss Rocamora has been in vaudeville now long enough to reach feature honors. Jesse L. Lasky has contributed popular songs and a talent of local theatergoers and in "Loving" has promised a very real act. There are four people in the little company and two of them made up as horses will surely have something to do with the comedy hours of the bill. Fred Jarvis and Frederick Harrison, "the fellow, the girl and the bench," will offer new songs and funny business. Lieutenant Eldridge with a series of hand pictures and a talk about the Mexican war, will complete the bill.

Willa Holt Wassfield, the original pinhead, will headline the original bill for the week of July 6. Miss Wassfield is an Atlanta girl and has more than been successful in high class vaudeville. Will Rogers, the funny cowboy comedian who scored so well at the Forsyth some seasons ago and who was last seen here with the Blanche Rice company at the Atlanta, will be on the same bill.

NEW PICTURE
AT THE GRAND.

On the heels of the triumphant success of "Brewster's Millions," a Jesse Lasky production which played the packed houses last week, the Grand theater has succeeded in booking the biggest of Lasky films, "The Only Son." The appealing stage story that has just closed a remarkable career on Broadway.

The play was written by Winchell Smith, author of "Brewster's Millions." The role of the only son is portrayed by Thomas W. Ross, the noted actor, who created the original character. The picture is in five reels. The story of "The Only Son" is intense with human appeal. It is the story of a struggling prospector, strikes gold after many years of struggling. Going to New York with his family, he becomes a potent influence in the financial world. The son, Thomas, Jr., burdened with wealth, lives the wild life of a spend-thrift. The mother leads a life of indolent luxury. She meets an artist, for whom she sits, and who falls in love with her. "The Only Son" will be the Grand's offering for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The revolution Grand prices will prevail. For Thursday, Friday and Saturday comes "Captain Alvarez," a Vitaphone all-star attraction which has just closed a flattering run at the Vitaphone theater in New York, where it gained the reputation of one of the largest Vitaphone productions of the year.

"Captain Alvarez" is an exciting war drama. Its all-star cast includes Julia Swartz Gordon, Anita Stewart, Harry T. Morey and Gladden James. It is said to be far bigger than even "Million Dd," the stupendous attraction which created such widespread talk during its run at the Grand two weeks past.

The Grand has also booked the new Pathé film series which has been issued daily. There will be a change of Pathé films each performance, showing all the news of the day in pictures within the six-star time limit.

Miss Jesse Houston will have a bill in topical songs.

"THE FACTORY GIRL"
AT THE BIJOU.
The Jewel Kelley company announces for its fourth week, beginning Monday afternoon, the four-act labor play entitled "The Factory Girl." The cast of characters will be as follows: Frank Barton, Vernon Wallace, Count Castanilla, Russell Hampton, Ben Thomas, T. C. McDonough, Gabriel Flint, C. J. Lamore, Daniel Harrington, Lee Harvey, Tommy Tucker, Earl Higley, Ed Parker, R. C. Nank, Judge C. C. Marshall, Laidlaw, Mrs. Bentley and Miss Clark, Miss Margaret Rossell, Mrs. Maylow, Helen Jackson, Mrs. Gabriel Flint, Miss Kate Vernon, Panny Brown, Miss Rose Morris, Marian Thomas, Florence Pinkney.

The story of the play carries the spectator from the work shop of Gabriel Flint, then into a room in Maria's mansion, with its rich furnishings, and then finally in act fourth to the interesting police court scene, where the girl, finally gets justice and everything ends happily. In its interesting plot and clever character studies, "The Factory Girl" is quite as good a play as "The Paradox." One of the strongest labor plays that has ever been dramatized. It is replete with dramatic incidents, sensational episodes, and the various characters have been drawn with a keen insight into the lives of America's working people. The play is entirely different from anything that has ever been presented by the Jewel Kelley company and it is anticipated that it will make one of the biggest hits of the stock season.

Every attention has been paid to the scenic effects and the efficient hand of Mr. Lammer, as stage director, will be evidenced in the complete manner in which "The Factory Girl" will be staged, during its week matinees which will be given daily at 2:30, and night performances at 8:30. Monday night ladies will be admitted free under the usual conditions.

KAMPER TO OPEN PURE FOOD DEPARTMENT STORE

Public Invited to Call Wednesday Evening and Get Acquainted with Innovation

An innovation in Atlanta and the south—a "Pure Food Department Store"—will be opened to the public Wednesday afternoon and evening.

As unlike an old-fashioned corner grocery as it would be expected from a store in which groceries are sold, is the new and handsomely fitted building at Peachtree and Linden streets, which has just been completed and will be occupied by Kamper's Pure Food Department Store.

Modern business methods, attractiveness and convenience are the prime objects which are carried out in the new store.

The new idea is rather a striking departure from the corner grocery, in which profits were expected from selling down expense in equipment. The new store has the best and most modern equipment possible to obtain, and the profits of the business are expected to come from increased efficiency in handling the orders of the customers.

The main saleroom of the store will be devoted entirely to selling. As far as is possible, waste will be eliminated, and the management of the store hopes to reap from efficiency and system far more than has been spent in securing these things.

DUST AND AIR SHUT OUT.

Every article that is offered for sale in the new store will be protected from the dust and air. All perishable goods will be displayed in refrigerator showcases. A refrigerating system, which will produce the same cold produced by the melting of sixteen tons of ice each day, has been installed to take care of these, as well as of the slight cooled storehouses which may be kept at any temperature which is desirable. Twelve clerks will do nothing in the new store but take telephone orders.

The Southern Bell Telephone company designed a special switchboard for the new store whereby the telephone clerk may speak with any department at the same time he is talking with the customer. Twenty trunk lines enter the store.

The manner in which telephone orders are handled is novel and as efficient. Special carrier systems go from the central telephone clerks to the different departments. An order which comes in over the telephone is divided on special slips into an order for each department which is handled by the carrier system immediately. The order is assembled in the delivery room as quickly as one purchase could be made.

An automobile garage, complete with repair shop, is located in the rear of the building. Six automobile trucks and twenty wagons take care of the deliveries.

In the show window for perishable foods in the front of the building is an unusual sign. The refrigerating pipe, or part of it, has been bent into the word "Kamper's." This will be covered with a coating of frost an inch thick at all times.

It will make small difference with the new store whether groceries are in season or out of it, for with the splendid refrigeration system any goods may be kept without deterioration and almost in any quantity.

GOODS OF HIGH QUALITY.

The equipment of the store is too valuable to waste on anything but the highest quality of goods, according to Mr. Kamper, and it is one of the efficiency ideas that only the highest quality of goods shall be handled.

The efficiency of the store has been obtained by attention to details of its arrangements and management. For an instance, the bakery is directly over the department in the saleroom, devoted to bakery products. This is connected with it by a dumb waiter. The result is that time is saved as well as labor in handling these products.

The assembly room for orders is in the delivery room. This saves waste of time and effort in carrying the orders from one part of the building to the other.

The main saleroom of the store will be finished in fumed oak and white enameled tiling. The refrigerating showcases will be of plate glass and white enamel. The front of the store is finished in white tile.

The offices of the store will be on a mezzanine floor extending over the saleroom.

The public has been invited to attend the opening on Wednesday afternoon, from 5 until 9 o'clock.

KELLEY AND M'CORD TO SEEK RE-ELECTION

Second Ward Alderman and Councilman Put in Race by Citizens' Delegation

A delegation of Second ward citizens yesterday waited on Alderman Charles H. Kelley and Councilman J. L. McCord, of that ward, and persuaded them to stand for re-election in the city primary next fall.

With the Georgia avenue extension unfinished, the South Pryor street extending about to commence and the southeastern exposition at Lakewood fairly projected, the Second ward people feel a continuance of the service of these officials will be to the best interests of all concerned, and that to change them for others would be "swapping horses in the middle of the stream."

Councilman McCord is serving the unexpired term of Councilman Thomas J. Lynch, who resigned, and Alderman Kelley is serving the unexpired term of the late Alderman John E. McClellan, who also resigned.

In the primary they will be candidates for the full terms, the councilman term being two years and the aldermanic term being three years.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK
Co-Operation, The Road to Success in Nearly All Lines of Work

There never has been any one thing so convincing and so much proof of the importance of people getting together, forming a union and sticking to the rules and regulations if they wish to get the greatest results from their work than the forming of the Peach Growers' union in Georgia. This should convince everyone of how much importance this work is for the future benefit of the people who grow any kind of products on the farm in Georgia and California. The Georgia Peach Growers' union is the only safe on making one dollar profit on each peach. It is the only product of the Georgia fruit grower that has been sold for less than freight and many did not get a peach, when they were willing to pay a fair price for them.

There are many towns that before this association was formed never saw a peach. Now they are getting a peach for them. The result is that a fair price has been secured for the entire product of the Georgia fruit grower. This organization has sold hundreds of cars of peaches for less than freight and many did not get a peach, when they were willing to pay a fair price for them.

Now, a great many people send their buyers direct to the orchards, and this year from present indications it looks like the crop will sell for 25 cents per crate. Good Georgia peaches will sell for 15 cents per crate. The organization of this union it has made fruit growing more profitable than ever. People can depend on the fact that they will get a peach for them. They are going to get a profit out of it. Other things they can do so, and many lines of profitable industry and the production of goods that are in demand is desired for the welfare of the people.

This is one reason today why farming has not been more successful. It is one reason why the people are not getting the full benefit of the farm. It is one reason why the people are not getting the full benefit of the farm. It is one reason why the people are not getting the full benefit of the farm.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

WITH the end of June society has closed its doors to all formality and many of its members have departed for a summer vacation. The society columns are filled with the departure of those seeking rest and diversion at seashore resort, mountain-side hotel and the quiet country. There are those, however, who have chosen to stay at home, quietly passing the long, sleepy days, enjoying close at hand the summer rest that others go far to seek.

There are as many ways to spend the summer vacation as there are places to spend it. There are those who go solely to "get away" to the seashore or to the mountains. They have luxurious summer homes in New York, Long Island, Massachusetts or Maine, where the salt water flows as freely in their bath-rooms as it does in the ocean at the edge of their grounds, where twenty guests can be entertained in as brilliant and costly manner as in their town homes. Those who have no summer homes go to the fashionable hotels at Atlantic City or Bar Harbor. Then there is always a group of professional people who find a rest in a change of places, but who continue their studies or vocations. They go to the large cities of the United States and Europe, where they can study under the great teachers or enter into personal contact with people of professional prominence. They want to be where they can visit art galleries, the libraries, the places of learning and the historic landmarks.

For Diamonds--- Perfect Diamonds. Particular Buyers Turn to Haynes

Few people know diamonds. They are usually bought on "faith"—faith in the integrity of the salesman and the HOUSE.

It is such unshaken faith in our old-fashioned business honor which a few days ago led the purchaser of an expensive diamond to say: "I am buying this diamond on confidence. I don't know diamonds, but I do know you."

It pays to deal only with a house of unquestioned integrity in a matter of such importance as the purchase of a diamond.

It pays to buy at Haynes'. You can buy a diamond of us as you would your home, pay one-fifth cash and the other in ten equal monthly payments.

Express package sent prepaid anywhere on approval.

SULPHUR FOR ECZEMA

APPLIED LIKE COLD CREAM IT STOPS ITCHING AND DRIES SKIN ERUPTIONS RIGHT UP

With the first application of sulphur cream the angry itching at the base of the eruption ceases and its remarkable healing powers begin. Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common, bold sulphur, made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of bold sulphur cream and apply it to the irritated, inflamed skin, the same as you would any cold cream.

For many years this soothing, healing Sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous affections by reason of its parasite-destriving property. It is not only antiseptic, but also antipruritic, antipsoriatic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to instantly subside the irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Mack's Team Confident of Winning Flag

World's Champions Don't Believe There Is Any Team Strong Enough to Beat Them Out of Pennant-Sluggers Winning for Mack

Detroit, June 27.—The Tigers are making a brave fight to overtake the world's champion Athletics, but if J. P. Morgan's estimate is correct, the slight feeling that he is going to decorate this city with another pennant Connie Mack and his henchmen beg to differ with Huggins on the question. The tall ministerial leader of Philadelphia's celebrated troupe of performers is not one given over to making predictions, but from no less an authority than Pat Daley, the erstwhile Athletic, who is now pasturing for the Yankees, the feeling of the Athletic team is unanimous that they are going to win the flag again.

Daley, who ought to know if any one else declares that the Athletics are cocksure that they'll figure in another world's championship series again. "The boys," said Daley, "don't believe there is a team in the league strong enough to beat them out. As far as they are concerned they think they've the pennant won already. The only thing that causes them concern is how many games they are going to finish ahead of the next best club."

"From time to time you hear them say that Plank and Bender are all in," said Daley. "Don't pay any attention to that kind of stuff. Those old boys will be there when Connie needs them. Bender isn't himself just now because he has been trouble with tonsillitis, and Plank has been trouble with a sore arm. But Connie has a couple of pitchers who will carry the team along until they get right."

"With that bunch of sluggers, Mack doesn't need any pitchers. Furthermore, they always get the breaks. I don't know what they try to always get away with it. I never saw a luckier team than Mack's."

Jennings, of the Tigers, isn't saying much these days, but is keeping the team plugging along. Huggins, who has asked what chance he thought the Tigers had to finish first, was rather non-committal.

"That's a hard question to answer," the crack-faced manager replied. "I don't say that we are going to win, but I will say this, we are going to be either first, second or third. We've got a fighting chance, and if we have a little luck we may make the Athletics hustle a bit before the season ends."

Goodrich Co. Has Safety Cup

An instance of how fully the R. F. Goodrich Co. carries out its policy of "Safety First" throughout its immense factories at Akron, Ohio, as well as in the design and construction of its tires, is shown in a device known as the "Safety Cup" which is offered to all employees.

The cup is of the collapsible, "plastic" style and is put up in a metal case. On the cover are the words "Safety First" and the Goodrich trade mark.

The cup has proved popular among employees and is used by thousands in the rubber factory, who take an enthusiastic part in the company's campaign to promote safety along all lines.

The use of the "Safety First" drinking cup in the Goodrich plant and office eliminates the danger of infection by means of a common drinking cup, a danger which many states have legislated against in the last few years.

Anticipate New Records

One day of the automobile race meet which is to be held at Galveston, Tex., from July 2 to August 2, is to be given over to motorcycleists. On July 31, the best rider of the single-tracker in the country will compete for first honors. The beach course will be in perfect condition for the great automobile events and it is expected that some new dirt track records will be hung up by the two-wheelers. These events are to be witnessed by the audience of the Galveston Motorcycle club. A ten-mile amateur contest is also scheduled for the meet.

Prest-O-Lite Users Should Watch for This Fraud

Certain parties in Atlanta and vicinity are endeavoring to defraud Prest-O-Lite users by substituting nameless, mutilated and worthless tanks.

These substitutes, when empty, can be exchanged in very few places. Your Prest-O-Lite can be exchanged anywhere and everywhere.

In addition, a substitute gives very inferior lighting service.

Bear in mind that an acetylene cylinder is not merely "an empty tank" which anyone can "fill." A Prest-O-Lite contains a porous filling saturated with chemical. The whole device must be kept in good repair, inside and outside; must be carefully tested and skillfully charged.

Whenever you exchange your empty for another Prest-O-Lite, you are getting what is practically a brand new Prest-O-Lite, tested, repaired and full of the highest grade acetylene.

Prest-O-Lite service cannot be obtained except under the Prest-O-Lite label.

Before you accept any cylinder in exchange for your Prest-O-Lite

Look for the Prest-O-Lite Trade Mark

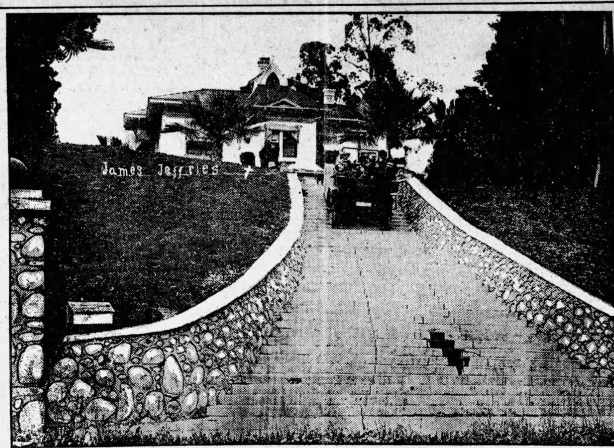

Tear off any paper labels and look for the name Prest-O-Lite, etched in large letters on the side of the cylinder.

If the cylinder does not clearly show the word "Prest-O-Lite," without any guesswork, it is NOT a genuine Prest-O-Lite, and is not accepted for exchange service by any Prest-O-Lite dealer.

Look at your cylinder today and see if a substitution has already been practiced upon you. If so, demand the return of your Prest-O-Lite. Communicate with us promptly and we will gladly help you recover your property.

AUTO CLIMBING STEPS TO JEFFRIES' HOME

Although James J. Jeffries, former heavy weight champion of the world, found he couldn't "come back" lots of his friends come back to see him and they travel in style, too. A stretch of 41 stone steps leads to the Jeffries home in Los Angeles, Cal. The other day when Earl Davis, a Los Angeles business man, saw James J., on the street he told him he was coming to call with his "car-cab." "Come ahead I don't think you'll get very far," said the former champion. Mr. Davis gathered together a party, drove to the foot of the steps and then went up. That Jeffries rather liked it is evident by his smile.

Gas Company Buys Motors

Local Concern Buys Harley-Davidson Machines for Use in Collection Department

The Atlanta Gas Light company recently purchased from the southern branch of the Harley-Davidson Motor company two of the 1914 model Harley-Davidsons to be used in their collection department. This department used the Harley-Davidson several years ago, and has again purchased, as stated above, following the loss of the Chicago Gas Light company, which recently purchased from the Chicago dealer of the Harley-Davidson Motor company forty-five Harley-Davidson motorcycles, which makes a total of seventy-five Harley-Davidsons that are being used by the Chicago Gas Light company. Big corporations all over the country are putting in this machine for their service departments. While in Chicago recently, Mr. Castle, the manager of the Harley-Davidson company's southern branch, closed a contract with one of the largest electric companies to supply all of their branches in the southern states with Harley-Davidson motorcycles for their "trouble finders."

The demand for motorcycles for commercial use is growing daily, as over 7,000 Harley-Davidsons are being used by the United States government in the rural mail service throughout the United States. Gus Castle, manager of the southern branch, has been appointed to represent the Georgia branch of the Harley-Davidson company at the convention of this body, which takes place in St. Louis on July 16, and will carry with him a proxy vote of the membership of Georgia. As there will be quite a few changes in the officers of the P. A. M., and the fact that all makers of motorcycles in the United States are behind this movement, a decided increase in membership is expected from the south, and especially Georgia. As the result of one of the benefits of being a member of the Federation of American Motorcycleists will be shown at the next meeting of the Georgia legislature, when, through the concentrated

CARE GIVEN EVERY DETAIL IN BUILDING HUPMOBILE CAR

HOW THE HUPMOBILE IS MADE

Building motor cars is next in importance to designing. A motor car to give perfect service, must be built properly and with precision and not in a half hearted fashion. The manufacturing establishment that is not completely up-to-date in every detail cannot expect to obtain satisfactory results with its product. Back of the Hupmobile is a factory organization of expertly trained mechanics; a factory where skilled workmen abound; where every workman takes conscientious pride in his day's work; and where machinery of the highest caliber and latest invention is turning out Hupmobile parts with a correctness and accuracy surpassed not even by the makers of the highest priced cars. The executives in charge of this organization are men of high repute and standing in the motor industry; men of unlimited experience who began their training with the foundation of motor car building.

In the building of Hupmobiles nothing is left to chance, everything is scientifically exact. Raw materials are carefully scrutinized, analyzed and tested—varying heat treatments for the various parts are specified. The designing, the forging, the stamping, the machining, the drilling, the painting are characterized by a scrupulous precision and a scientific exactness that are equalled in few if any motor car factories in the world.

"We Build Better Tires Than Goodyears"

That—in effect—is what makers say when they charge you higher prices. And 16 makers do that. They are asking for tires up to one-half more than present Goodyear prices. The inference is wrong. Those extra prices are all unjust. The verdict of users—as shown by sales—is that No-Rim-Cut tires are the best in the world. And in four ways they certainly are.

That Is Impossible

It's utterly impossible, so far as men know, to build a better tire than Goodyears, measured by cost per mile.

For years and years we've employed scores of experts to find out ways to better them. Their efforts have cost us $100,000 per year. No-Rim-Cut tires mark the present-day limit, to the best of their belief.

How They Excel

No-Rim-Cut tires, in at least four ways, excel every other tire.

Our No-Rim-Cut feature—which we control—is found in these tires alone.

Our "On-Air" cure is employed by no other maker. This extra process costs us $450,000 yearly, but it saves many times that in blow-outs.

Our rubber rivets—formed to combat tread separation—are a patent feature found in no other tire.

Our All-Weather tread

—the greatest anti-skid—is an exclusive Goodyear feature. It is tough, double-thick and enduring. It is flat and smooth, yet it grips wet roads in a readiness way with countless deep, sharp-edged grips.

What We Save

Our matchless output and modern equipment have immensely cut cost of production. They have cut our overhead cost 24 per cent, our labor cost 25 per cent. We have also cut our profits, until last year they averaged 6 1/2 per cent.

No-Rim-Cut tire prices dropped 28 per cent last year. They are half what they used to be, but never before was the quality so high as it is today.

Smaller makers can't compete on our high-grade tire. That's another reason for getting Goodyear tires.

Almost any dealer will supply them.

The Why of Hup Economy

That the Hup costs less to run is not just an accident. The reason goes back to Hup quality and Hup engineering. To the small-bore, long-stroke motor, with its exceptional power and economy. To the fine materials used in the motor, and every other vital part, making repairs and replacements few and rare. To advanced and sound engineering principles, accompanied by the utmost care and skill in the shops; to nicety of fit and exact co-ordination of parts.

Ask Any Hupmoblist

The Hup could not merit its fame as "The Car of the American Family" were its upkeep not well within reach of the average family.

It could not be called the "best car of its class in the world" if its construction were poor or faulty or weak. All over the world owners praise Hup sturdiness and strength, and Hup lesser running cost. They buy second and third Hups on the strength of their complete satisfaction with the first. The average Hup owner's experience is an open book.

You can easily satisfy yourself as to how the car is regarded. See the Hup dealer, if you don't know an owner.

During the latter part of his visit, however, the floods had subsided and business of all kinds resumed its usual activity.

Edwin C. Bell who travels the A. R. & A. road for the Brower Candy company always gives a good account of himself. When he calls up on long distance telephone, the house always knows that he is headed to the guards with orders. He is a thorough optimist and his genial ways bring him much success.

ATLANTA C. S. S. CO. ENJOY BIG PICNIC

Will Give Annual Outing at Powder Springs on July 11

Editor the Firing Line: The United Commercial Travelers of Atlanta are going to have their annual picnic with their families on Saturday, July 11. All United Commercial Travelers boys with their families and their sweethearts will leave on a special train for Powder Springs on the above date. And to say in advance that this trip will be a most enjoyable one from many viewpoints, not expressing it anything like as enthusiastically as we should, or as the occasion will merit.

All of the details have not been worked out, but the committee insists that within a few days all will be completed. However, one of the features will be the baseball game between Atlanta council 18 and Fulton council 105. This game is an assured fact, for Fulton council has challenged Atlanta 18 and anybody who will call the membership of 18 knows that they will reply to the challenge of Fulton with acceptance and a strong baseball team.

Clarence E. Byrd is the captain and manager of the team. He has received requests that all who expect to participate on Fulton's team let him know in time to make arrangements for the team. As heretofore stated, this outing will be exclusively one for the United Commercial Travelers. Everybody remember that it will leave the city on the terminal station at 5 o'clock on private train.

Yours,
W. G. MOORE,
Chairman Press Committee, Fulton, No. 105, United Commercial Travelers.

HIRSHBERG AND PARTY HAD FINE TRIP TO ATHENS

"I had a most delightful trip last week to Athens, Ga., where I went to see the famous Hirschberg and party. They were very kind to let me see their place and show me the fine view of the city. I was very much interested in the fine view of the city and the fine view of the city."

The following travelers of Dobbs & West Co. will go on the road this week with samples of their goods. They will be in the city on Saturday and Sunday, July 11 and 12.

John W. Whitaker, of the office force of John Stiver & Co., put one over on the city last week. He was married on May 23 in Miss Corine Williams, of Atlanta, but only announced it at the office last week when he was in the city. He is a very good hand and a very good hand.

O. P. Bennett, of the Brower Candy company, was up in the Blue Ridge mountains last week. He was in the city on Saturday and Sunday, July 11 and 12.

TWO NEW AND THRIVING GIDEON CAMPS ORGANIZED

Georgia Division Expects to Win Banner Again for Largest Membership Increase

Unless all calculations are wrong, Atlanta's Gideons will again set their national convention with the record for the large percentage of increase in membership of any state division. At the convention last year at Toronto, Canada, the Georgia division was awarded the banner for the largest membership increase. The national convention will hold this year at Boston on July 22-24.

Within the past two weeks the Georgia Gideons have organized two new camps and the old camps have received a number of new members. The new camps are located at Gainesville and Newnan.

Mary Fuller

NEMESIS THAT PURSUED PRETTY MARY FULLER TO ATLANTA

"A H!" sighed pretty Mary Fuller. Then she called a taxi, had six trunks packed, and took the next boat for Savannah. The sigh had been one of joy. This was why: In a temperamental moment, the star of moving pictures suddenly had forewarned all cameras. Not renowned the moving picture stage! No. But pretty Mary Fuller had decided for recreation—ocean waves, breezes, the land of the south, languorous, idle days and all that. At the same time she had decided against cameras. This was exactly four weeks ago in New York City. For a twelvemonth, with scarcely a day's interruption, Miss Fuller had posed, now as a demure heroine, now as a dashing one, but constant naturally to the heroine role. Pictures the Edison company held of greatest excellence gave ten feet of film to Miss Fuller where others would demand only five. Without doubt she quenched it in moving pictures. That is why she could decide suddenly that the sight of cameras gave her "nerves," why she could call a taxi, have her six trunks packed, and take the next boat for Savannah. Her explanation to the Edison company was explicitly succinct. She hated the sight of cameras. She wished to flee from New York studios, and—the taxi was waiting. As she went aboard she heard a "click." The New York papers have ship reporters and photographers. One of the camera men was taking the picture of the queen of the movies. She felt this was horrible in him. But—she sighed ruefully, and looked up in time to give a passenger with a pocket kodak opportunity to snap the pictorial heroine in a distressed mood. Miss Fuller says the boat to Savannah was plying with pocket cameras. No one played even "old maid," that popular game in the smoking room, or told of amazing storms he had weathered. All were too busy photographing her. She said that the lens of a pocket camera began to appear to her as only of the dozen white eyes gathered back of her. The gangplank was lowered, the cameras snapped, and Mary Fuller fled to land. She was sighing again, this time in relief when—"click." The Savannah papers have ship news reporters and photographers. They were taking pretty Mary Fuller's picture. The six trunks were gathered together, a ticket was bought, and she took flight for Atlanta. A moment's freedom from cameras was there called away to sea, and that his ship never came home. So, she flutters her bit of white handkerchief to all vessels, thinking perhaps he may be aboard. But pretty Mary Fuller thought camera men were about to pounce. And so she arrived in Atlanta. No photographer at the station. None at the hotel. She sighed—that joyous sigh, which was a prelude to the temperamental departure from New York. Then—she said "Come in" to the knock on the door, and a gold-buttoned bell boy entered with the cards of a delegation of photographers. The photographers of the United States and Canada, and some of those of Europe were meeting in York, to assume actively the position of queen of moving pictures.

dreamed of a carnivorous camera that stealthily crept on her as she sat forlornly on the sixth trunk, and then, as she'd awake, this terrible beast always was about to pounce. And so she arrived in Atlanta. No photographer at the station. None at the hotel. She sighed—that joyous sigh, which was a prelude to the temperamental departure from New York. Then—she said "Come in" to the knock on the door, and a gold-buttoned bell boy entered with the cards of a delegation of photographers. The photographers of the United States and Canada, and some of those of Europe were meeting in York, to assume actively the position of queen of moving pictures.

to appear before them as a subject. As the representatives of all the camera world they knocked at her door and asked that she be photographed. From New York she had fled into the midst of cameras. Here, in fact, the whole photographic world had assembled. Then, she sighed, a dejected, defeated sigh. Never again would she try to escape the big white eye of the camera lens. Who could deny fate? So it was, pretty Mary Fuller was photographed at the recent convention of photographers in Atlanta, and then returned meekly to New York, to assume actively the position of queen of moving pictures.

Between vain attempts to elude the camera, she was asked on the boat, in Savannah, and in Atlanta how one becomes a moving picture queen, and she said: "First you learn to say something without saying it. You look it. It's your cue to say 'good morning' or 'where are the papers,' or 'I adore you,' or some other piquant and original phrase. And, instead of saying it, you use your eyes, lips, hands in such a way as to explain it all by facial expression. Then, you learn to fly in airships or dive into water of unplumbed depths or ride an untamed elephant. "After that you begin to learn the hard things. "And," continued pretty Mary Fuller, "I like your city fine. I think the Edison company surely will establish a studio here. And, good-by."

THE NATIONAL CAPITOL WHERE CONGRESS MEETS.

By Frank G. Carpenter

I wonder if you have any idea of the size of Bolivia. Situated here in the heart of the continent, with a great desert between it and the ocean, it is the third largest of the South American republics. It covers altogether more than 700,000 square miles. It is one-fourth as big as the United States proper, six times as big as Germany, and more than three times the size of Germany or France, and three times as big as Austria-Hungary, or the Kingdom of Italy. It extends from north to south as far as from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, and it is almost as wide as from

The value of all South American silver has less than 30,000, and Potosi, which has added more than $3,000,000,000 in precious metals to the world's supply, is now a small town. In Oruro, the chief tin mining center, away down in the desert, does a great deal of business, but it has very few people. The silver and tin mines probably not more than 200,000 in all of Bolivia who are living in towns. Outside are large tracts that are given over to raising stock. The plains of Bolivia are pampas covered with grass that are equal to the Argentine Republic in their wonderful fertility. Industries are few, but there is a wealth of agricultural and mineral possibilities, and it awaits only the advent of capital and enterprise to make it better than any other country in the world.

The movement toward the taking up of the wild lands of Bolivia and Argentina has already begun. I can see that great changes have been made with the coming of the railroads. The first came to La Paz. I traveled across the plateau on a stage, and then, when here, I took the first stage way to the sea. I rode for three days on the gallop behind a team of four mules. I rode over the high mountains, the little narrow-gauge railway that runs across the desert, and finally to the coast. I rode for three days at that time La Paz had no railroads and the only way to get to the coast was by muleback and foot. To-day there are three systems of iron roads from La Paz to the coast; and within a short time La Paz will be within three days by rail of the coast. The same is true of the railroads at Argentina and Bolivia. In Argentina about 100 miles of this gap will be filled by tracks within less than a year from this writing.

here was the sale to Brazil of the Acce territory, near the headwaters of the Amazon, for this the government was paid $1,000,000. It was decided to use this sum on new railways. The money was sent to New York, and it was American capitalists who laid down the first tracks of the system. Other moneys were sent to build the railway from Rio de Janeiro to the north, where there was more than $16,000,000 had been spent. There was now several big lines under construction and the country was dotted with new towns, 1,000 miles.

I can see great changes in La Plata. The capital has sprung into new life. It is now a city of 100,000, more than Lima, although the latter is more than twice its size. New buildings are being put up by the thousands and carpenters are working every part of the high basin in wood. The capital is a great center of traffic. As you go along them are jostled by donkey trains, llama trains, and I might also see a few of the great caravans for much of the goods is carried

When I was last here there was not a public cab in the whole city, and you could number the private cars on any one street. Now there are many four-horse cab drawn by mules and also fine private cars with a folding top, up the hill and down. When I came into the depot it was the best of the old-fashioned gamblers, who charged me about 20 cents each for carrying 200 pounds of me. I was not a little surprised.

Within the past decade La Paz has practically doubled in size. It has ex- tended over the hills and is now beginning to climb the sides of the hills. The street car line now runs about 2 1/2 miles, and the water supply crack in the sides of the hole where the city is built. There is one sub- stantial building, the Hotel de Co- flores. In the latter President Montes has his own home, and the city and there Mrs. Montes is building an insane asylum as a charity for the

Some of the older stores are not unlike those I described in Cuzco. They are built of adobe and are brightly lit from the front, the doors being set into the walls. Many of the shops have the second floors over such stores; the windows of which have balconies extending out over the street.

There is one thing that adds to the brightness and businesslike appearance of the Bolivian capital. The houses are painted in bright colors. The owner of a house painted in at least one color has no more to do. The owner of a house that has not long gone by and just now everything is sleek and span with new paint has to sweep the streets. It is that every one must sweep the streets in front of the building in which he lives.

And this brings me to the police and the soldiers. The government has a police force of 1,000 men, and is officered like the army of Germany. The soldiers are fine looking fellows, and are well equipped.

at the palace and capital, and I see them marching back and forth through the streets. The police force is a good one, and the official insist that each man shall give one ounce of force three times a day. One of the provisions cannot be carried out, whistling throughout the night. Every quarter of an hour a shrill whistle is heard on every block. The noise from the policemen is so loud that special bear is to be sent to thieves of his presence, and to warn the authorities that he is awake. It reminds me of the cry of the policeman of Guayaquil, which is: "¡El delincuente está despierto!" or in English, "The criminal is on the move!" China has a similar custom in that the policemen there have a kind of a clapper with which they make a loud noise and they yell about the streets, warning the burglars to keep out of their way.

This country is in the singular position of having two capitals. The legal capital is at Sucre, where the supreme court holds its sessions and where is the seat of the archbishop. The real capital is La Paz. It is here that the president lives, here congress holds its sessions, and the real work of the administration is

La religion and Roman Catholicism is the recognized religion of the country. The Catholic majority has been freely permitted, and there are now Protestant churches in the country. The Catholics receive from the state about 100 million pesos annually, devoted to the spreading of the faith among the Indians. The state also contributes money to the Protestant mission schools. It annually appropriates 100 million pesos to the Instituto de La Paz, and also to a similar school in Cochabamba. The state also contributes to the Protestant schools for girls as they are established. The state also contributes to the American Methodist Episcopal church. They are doing great work, and they are chiefly managed by the missionaries. Attendance in the Protestant schools is practically equal between the whites and the Colons so far. Last year the whites had 10,000 pupils, and they had only about 8,000 pupils the year before. There are universities at La Paz, Cochabamba, and Sucre. There is a commercial school that is said to be of good value. It has an interesting curriculum, including the history, geology, ethnology and resources of Bolivia. There are also a medical school, a law school, a Potol and Oruro

Balfour's Speech on Home Rule Masterpiece of Oratory

LONDON.—The speech of Arthur Balfour in the recent debates in the House of commons on home rule, wherein the former leader of the unionist party admitted the failure of his long life efforts toward maintenance of the union, was one of the most eloquent in the recent history of parliament. It had its parallel over a hundred years ago when Grattan, in his maiden speech in the imperial house of commons, on May 12, 1813, referred to the Irish parliament, whose legislative independence had been destroyed by his exertions, and whose destruction he deplored.

"Of that assembly" Grattan declared, "I have a parental recollection; I was by her cradle, I followed her to her grave."

Mr. E. Four is much in the same position. He is one of the last to admit that home rule, in some form or another, is now inevitable. He has steadily fought against a Dublin parliament, hoping that time would bring about a solution between the people of the two islands, and old quarrels would be forgotten. He is still bitterly opposed to home rule and yet is willing to make great sacrifices to attain it. He was the first to term "The Plot Against Ulster" and particularly against Winston Churchill the first lord of the admiralty, whom he referred to as an "Agent Provocateur."

Mr. Four was a time, no very long ago, as my life is measured, when I cherished the dream that if I had was restored in the southern province of Ireland. If every grievance was removed, if every inequality was smoothed away, if every encouragement was given to the legitimate industries of every locality, and if there were equal rights given to our Irish fellow subjects, ancient memories would gradually soften, men would look forward as well as backward, and there would be no quarrel about the difference between these two islands—a common hope, a common loyalty, confidence in a common heritage—and that all this might be accomplished under one parliament.

But I have striven; for that I have argued in this house and out of it; for that I have worked weary hours at legislative projects and striven to accommodate legislative ad-tails to the needs and necessities of the moment. And, sir, if the result of all is that, in order that civil war may be avoided, with all its incalculable horrors, there is yet to be established in Dublin a septs parliament to the injury, as I personally think, of the Irish people and not less perhaps to the British people—then, sir, I may be an object of pity to the right honorable gentleman; but he need not think I regard such a consummation as a triumph over my political enemies. On the contrary, it is the mark of the failure of a man's work. It is an admission that the causes for which I have most striven and most eagerly sought to accomplish are fated to break down, and that the longer

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, the Earl of Aberdeen, and his wife, the countess of Aberdeen, are the latest victims of the social boycott, resulting from the home rule controversy. The Lord and Lady Aberdeen, at a race meeting at Punchestown, where the Lord Lieutenant and Lady Aberdeen attended in state, writes that they were barely raised and there was no recognition of a cheer, when his excellency collected his party and returned to the car. It is perfect nonsense to pretend that this is a reflection of the Irish land class on the government, for the Lord Lieutenant is the representative of the King, whom they affect to despise.

The result has been the abandonment of most of the social entangling in Dublin, but this is hardly punishment on Lord and Lady Abingdon for they were never fond of society.

Keir Hardie, one of the labor leaders in the house of commons, predicted that when home rule is out of the way, the labor party will hold the balance of power between the two great parties, liberal and unionist. The Irish nationalists do not. Most of the Irish speak English and are liberals and unionists would not vote to parliament after the general election numerically much as they were but the circumstances of the next parliament were going to be different.

representation as a result of the battle rule bill would be reduced from 20 to 42, so that if the labor party could add 25 or even 20 seats to the 21 it already held by them they would be in a position to dictate to whatever party took over the reins of government.

Suggestions for the Hog Breeder

The well fed litter of pigs must have exercise or they will become fat. The thumbs are liable to claim the champagne.

It is no use to deceive ourselves by growing big hogs that the market discriminates against.

In the final accounting up the demands of the markets govern the type of hogs we must produce.

Fashion and improper kinds of feed have ruined the breeding qualities of

The remedy is laws like the Palmer bill; education of both the community and the child itself. As enlightened public opinion, in time, will force an atrocity like child labor. But while that time is coming there must be laws to regulate the knowledge to use and demand the problem. That is why the Palmer bill and other laws like it should be passed. It will not only regulate child labor but its enforcement will call the attention of the public to the problem and will result in the abolition of child labor. When that demand is heard, child labor will be a thing of the past.

is an opacity in dark skin that the skin of the Caucasian does not possess. Sunburn and tanning are not the result of the sun's heat, but of its light. Tanning will occur in an arctic snowfield or in the frigid atmosphere of a high mountain top, provided the light is bright enough. Indeed, tanning can be produced by rays of sunlight from which the heat has been artificially abstracted. When the cells capable of making this brown pigment known as tanning are unevenly distributed, the result is freckles instead of tanning. Skins very sensitive to light become freckled as a result of repeated exposures of the skin to the sun the skin becomes coarse and the pores large and unsightly. These changes do not come youth, but nearly always show themselves in a woman of advancing years. So, if you are tempted to throw precautions to the winds because you burned last summer and the year before without any great harm, remember that the harm may come as you grow older, if you persist in the tanning process. So many of your young friends play tennis on a blazing court with never a hat of any kind upon their pretty heads.

FRECKLES and tan are the two great enemies of the summer girl's complexion that she must guard against if she would have her fair skin without a blemish for the following winter. Tan looks well in a bathing suit, but even the summer dress will make it look unattractive. As we can well imagine its disgusting qualities in winter, when the gown is sometimes cut very low, and revealing beautiful materials bring into sharp relief the skin of the winter.

There are some skins, however, which will freckle and tan in spite of all precautions, although I warn you that these skin types will be much more troublesome if not properly guarded against. Freckles and tan have made beautiful girls very simple remedies for them. The best of their periods of hydration and half water. The disappearance of the tan and freckles will necessarily be gradual, and you should not try to do so in rapid applications. Wash the face in soap and water before retiring, and then apply the solution of peroxide of hydrogen. Allow this to stay on until morning. Then again wash the face in soap and warm water, applying a dash of cold water at the last as an astringent. There are two freckle creams which I consider among the best to be obtained. Eat Cornbread at our peril, says State Board of Health

"If you eat cornbread, eribs, hominy, muffins, and other articles of diet made from corn, you do so at your own risk, and against the advice of the most careful students of pellagra for the past century."

This paragraph concludes a statement issued recently by the Georgia state board of health.

H. H. Harris, secretary of the board, bases it on his twelve years' investigation of pellagra.

He has learned Italian to aid him in his researches, he is studying Roumanian, and already he reads German and French and has a smattering of Russian.

In an interview last week, amplifying the statement issued by the board, he explained in detail why he feels that corn as a food is dangerous and that it is the cause of pellagra.

He was first to discover pellagra in the United States, he has made the most exhaustive study of the disease, undertaken by an American scientist, and will issue a book which will be the first authoritative treatise on pellagra published in English.

Dr. Harris last week began with his reason for believing that corn causes pellagra.

"You don't find it in any country where corn isn't eaten," he said, "and you do find it in every country where corn is eaten."

"In France, the government believed that corn caused this sickness and began a crusade against the use of corn as a food."

What Italy Has Done.

"In many countries, for example, Italy, Spain and Germany, pellagra was unknown until corn was introduced."

"In 1902, Italy passed a law forbidding moulty corn to be used in making flour or in any other form as food. The result is that the number of cases of pellagra in Italy has been decreased since then from 100,000 to 24,000. Austria also passed a similar law."

"In fact, there is no doubt in the mind of anyone who knows the subject, that corn is the cause of pellagra."

"When the sickness was discovered in the United States, nothing had been written about it in English. The consequence has been a whole heap of wild speculating. Many people resented the idea that a food they had long been used to eating could produce a fatal disease, and every Tom, Dick and Harry had his ridiculous theory to propound."

"At that time I decided to go into the subject thoroughly, and in the twelve years which followed I have devoted much of my spare time to the study of this one disease. For the last five years I have given every moment I could spare to an investigation of pellagra and the causes to which it is due."

"I found that scientists have investigated this sickness in Italy more than in any other country. So, I studied Italian in order to read the many books on pellagra written in that tongue. I have today a very valuable collection of medical books by foreign authors, 400 or 500, and I have read everything written in Italian on pellagra."

Is Studying Roumanian.

"But one of the latest authorities is Babes, a Roumanian scientist, and in order to read his books I have begun the study of Roumanian."

"All my investigations have proved two things:

"That corn causes pellagra, and that pellagra is incurable."

"Since these two things are true, and since the foremost scientists are a unit in believing that eating diseased corn causes pellagra, people should avoid corn as a food unless they are sure that the grain is not diseased."

"Bellardini, an Italian scientist, published a book in 1845 in which he took the view that moulty corn is the cause of pellagra, and no one since has disproved this opinion."

Here Dr. Harris named Italian scientists who have added to the theory that moulty corn is the reason for pellagra.

Erbas and Lombroso believed that alkaloids were formed by the diseased corn. A more recent view is that the moulded condition of the grain causes phosgen poison. Komaroff's theory was that corn undergoes a change, like that of potatoes when they sprout, and that this germination gives rise to pellagra. Camurri believed that there are ferments in corn which produce disease. Later, German scientists proved that the albumin in corn, which is called "zein," and comprises 4 1/2 per cent of the total weight of the grain, is poisonous to animals.

Effects of Pellagra.

After these references Dr. Harris turned from the causes of pellagra to the effects of it.

"The changes wrought in the human system by pellagra," he explained, "are permanent. You might as well talk of growing back a leg that has been cut off as of curing anyone of pellagra."

This disease destroys the blood vessels, the brain cells, and the nerve cells, and in their place, nerve tissue forms. This condition may continue for years without being discovered. Then suddenly, some slight physical or nervous shock—at times, the most trivial cause—will bring the disease to the surface."

"I have known of a girl whose skin became reddened with pellagra blotches after she had washed clothes with lye soap. The same thing happened to a man who had stuck a tack in his foot, and to another who had helped to put out a fire."

"The fact that a patient appears to get well means nothing. The injuries that are wrought by pellagra are permanent. They never can be removed."

"This is why I say: Don't eat corn."

"And I wish to conclude that I condemn in the strongest terms the tendency of some to say that corn does not cause pellagra. Undoubtedly, it does."

Following is a part of the statement issued recently by the Georgia state board of health on pellagra:

"The discoverer of pellagra, Casal, stated that those who had the disease subsisted largely on Indian corn. It has been clearly shown that the malady did not exist in Spain before corn was introduced, and only did it appear in those sections of Spain where this cereal was eaten. When it was introduced into Italy pellagra soon made its appearance."

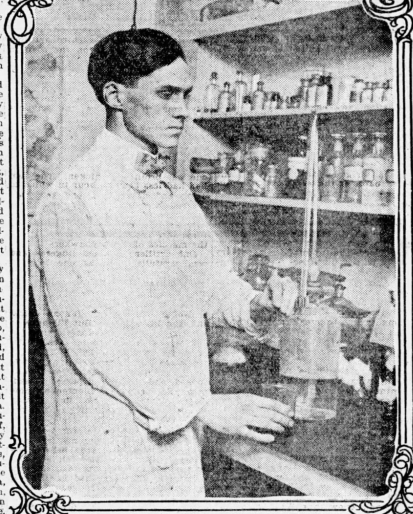

"It was stated by Frappelli that those who had the disease largely lived on corn. Frequent reference was made to this by Sironio, who was the greatest early writer on the subject, and Fagnano first clearly enunciated the view that pellagra was caused by corn. In 1810 Mariani wrote a book in which the relation of corn to the disease was clearly set forth."

"The malady was shown not to be transmissible by inoculation by Buzzi in 1808, and subsequently by one of his students, de Rolando, the results of his studies having been published in 1824 and 1828. In 1845 Bellardini wrote a book which has been accepted as practically settling the controversy."

as to the cause of the disease by those who have really studied the malady since that time. He quite clearly showed that the disease was probably due to eating moulty corn, and not simply to the grain itself, as had been claimed by Marzari."

"In the early sixties, the celebrated Lombroso took up the study of the subject, and until his death, nearly fifty years later, did an immense amount of work in connection with it, and so clearly showed that the disease is due to bad corn that this belief is intimately connected with his name. Russell, the foremost French authority on the subject, wrote a couple of large volumes, and was equally strong in the belief that the malady is due to bad corn. Following the publication of his books and the intelligent application of the principles set forth in his works, pellagra decreased in France until at the present time it is not believed that it exists there at all."

"Practically without exception, every one of the students of this subject in Italy, where the disease is most common and has been most carefully studied for nearly 150 years, agreed that there is practically no doubt that the malady is produced by corn. Gossio, De Voto, Matijovich, Antonini, Camurri, Coni, Di Pietro, Terabasso, Agostini, Vofrati, Fini, Tandi, and a host of others constituting the most eminent names in Italian medicine at the present day, all practically without exception, state their belief that eating corn is the cause of pellagra. Neusser, the foremost Austrian authority, likewise concurs in the belief and calls attention to the possibility of the poison being present in spirituous liquors made from corn. Babes, one of the most eminent living authorities on pellagra, and by far the foremost authority in Roumanian, where the disease is very common, maintains that there is no question that corn is the cause of the disease. The same is true of Kosowatz, the greatest Russian authority, and Sanderson, the foremost English writer on the subject."

Pseudo-Truth Seekers in the Pulpit

By Bishop
W. A. Candler

SOME take their departure from God not by sudden and violent acts of rebellion, but by insensible concessions to evil which scarcely leave a distinct impression on the conscience. Compliance with the spirit of the world, indulgence of petty wrongs, and the entertainment of doubtful scepticisms which defect but a little from the truth are the unsuspected processes by which men gradually forsake the way of faith and fall at last into deadly errors and fatal ruin.

Discussing these "soft transitions" by which so many men pass from lives of piety to lives of godlessness, one of the great British preachers says, "There are half-way houses to infidelity. These resting places on the path are the most dangerous. They are numerous and more cleverly pitched than today. There are sanctuaries of error, and the great danger is that in sure places, they are ingeniously housed. There are teachers who speciously teach their congregations to doubt everything except doubt. There is a literature which deftly saps old convictions, and which, like the thief in the night, despoils men of a faith more precious than their life. The down grade in belief is a masterpiece of engineering, and many who follow it are all the time unconscious of any declivity."

Under consideration, are within the range of the knowledge of every observing person.

Underlying most of such cases, if they are carefully examined, will be found a false conception of liberty and a desire for the praise of men.

Preachers who "teach their congregations to doubt everything but doubt" are they who seduce to the show of "independence" and "freedom of thought." They utter great-sounding words about liberty when in truth they are the bond-slaves of vanity, concerned for neither freedom nor faith, but by any means they would be applauded by men of the world.

One of the most common and constant professions proclaimed by men of this type is that they are "seekers after truth," but nothing is further from the truth. A real truth-seeker, who sincerely feels that he does not possess the truth, is always a quiet man. He does not talk because he knows not what to say; for he is still seeking truth, and has not found it. No man should undertake to preach until he sincerely believes that he has found the truth, and can proclaim with confidence that which he knows and feels. The Psalmist said, "I believed, therefore I spoke." He believed, therefore he spoke. He was removed the furthest possible from the modern preacher who speaks most when he believes least.

Paul, alluding to the words of the Psalmist, says, "We have the same spirit of faith, according as it is written, I believed, and therefore have spoken; we also believe, and therefore speak" (II Corinthians iv:13).

The same note of certitude sounds throughout the Apostolic writings, and throughout all the words and deeds of the primitive Church. In the opening sentence of the third Gospel, St. Luke speaks of the things which are most surely believed among us, even as they delivered them unto us, which from the beginning were eye-witnesses, and ministers of the word" (Luke i:1 and 2).

The conception of the early Church of its function with reference to religious truth was, not that of one who is to "discover truth, but that of one who is the depository and defender of the truth which has been revealed from heaven and committed to his keeping. Wherefore St. Jude, in his epistle to the saints of his day, exhorts them that they "abound earnestly concerning the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints."

The same note of certitude prevails throughout the writings of all the great Christian leaders, from the days of the Apostles until now. John Wesley, for example, came preaching truth which he confidently believed; and he never pretended to be out upon a voyage of discovery to find the truth that none before him had ever known or taught. The others of whom he taught, "Weaver it is the old religion—as old as the Reformation, as old as Christianity, as old as Moses, as old as Adam." He was no doubter, grown vain of his doubts and parading them in public to win the applause of other doubters in the pews and the streets.

Worldly men in the pulpit, petted and raised by worldly men in the pew, haste to ruin themselves and rapidly ruin the souls of others by the truth which they hold in common, until they come to believe that what they utter is universally voiced by mankind.

We have had enough of this sort of folly, and there are signs of reaction against it. Men can not live on doubts. The soul of man lives by what he believes, and not by what it doubts.

Some preachers complain that many people do not attend Church because they do not believe. The contrary is more nearly the truth. Multitudes have been driven from the pews by sensational declaimers whose stock-in-trade is in opposition to the fundamental beliefs of the Christian Church in all ages.

In one of his best and most wholesome stories Mr. Thomas Nelson Page puts into the mouth of one of his characters these wise words: "When I want preaching, I go to Church. At least, I do when I am first told that it is not so often these."

The pulpit has lost its power, sir; thrown away its best prerogative—the gift of preaching. The clergy no longer preach with power, because they no longer believe with strength."

"Conventions are not going to stay long under the ministrations of a man who boasts that he is 'a truth-seeker,' and who abdicates the functions of one who is set to proclaim the settled truth upon which men live. Pseudo-truth-seekers should seek some other place than the pulpit in which to parade. Sinning, sad, and suffering men, who ask bread of the preacher ought not to be given a stone; when hungry souls ask food they ought not to be given a serpent of doubt."

Our conventional truth-seekers ought to seek religion. If they were recovered from their back-sliding, both they and their congregations would fare better. More people would hear preaching, if we had more real preaching to hear.

In the "blue-book epistle" of Noah Webster it was said, "the preacher preaches the gospel." That is true of every preacher, and a real preacher must preach the gospel. The combat lasted two days. Everybody expected a tragic conclusion, but La-berdenque attacked with such audaciousness that without intending it, he simply ran Max Regis through the arm. The seconds who forewarned the rasist court proceedings which were to follow a fatal duel in France, were only too happy to stop the combat and declared "honor satisfied." It was the only duel I have ever seen in France in which the combatants were fighting for their lives.

The pulpit, especially the urban pulpit, was never more sensational than at this time, and the question of "Why do not the people attend Church?" was never so frequently and urgently raised. The answer is easy. The people will not stay with vain "truth-seekers" and sentimentalists, who are "ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth" (II Timothy iii:7). Why should they?

Men can not be held by the brilliant guesses of "pseudo-truth-seekers."

Man of Ninety Duels Dead

(BY HENRI FEURER.)

PARIS.—One of the most curious figures in Paris has died in Etienne Laberdeque. He was known as "Laberdeque," "tout court." He was one of the best fencers in Paris—he fought over twenty duels—and was one of the most familiar figures on the boulevards.

The duel which caused all Paris to know his name was that with Max Regis, the notorious anti-Semitic mayor of Algiers. The combat lasted two days. Everybody expected a tragic conclusion, but La-berdenque attacked with such audaciousness that without intending it, he simply ran Max Regis through the arm. The seconds who forewarned the rasist court proceedings which were to follow a fatal duel in France, were only too happy to stop the combat and declared "honor satisfied." It was the only duel I have ever seen in France in which the combatants were fighting for their lives.
